THE BOOK

Explore the rich and fascinating history of tattoos, and the ways in which ink has united cultures and told stories throughout the ages.

From Neolithic body-painting to the bold statements of modern tattoo culture, Tattoo traces how humans have used their skin as a canvas for identity, status, and storytelling since the dawn of time. Written by a team of subject experts and specialist historians, under Editor-in-Chief, Matt Lodder, it tells the fascinating global story of one of the world's most enduring artforms.

Discover the world's oldest tattoos on Ötzi the Iceman and the ritualistic designs of Indigenous Arctic communities. Witness the rise and fall of tattooing in the ancient world – from sacred symbols in Egypt and Mesopotamia to marks of punishment in Greece and Rome. Follow the art form through medieval Europe, where Christian pilgrims bore inked crosses, and to Edo Japan, where elaborate irezumi designs flourished. See how tattoos became synonymous with sailors, soldiers, and subcultures – from Polynesian voyages and Japanese Yakuza to the punk, biker, and hip-hop movements of the 20th century. And learn how numerous designs and traditions have evolved throughout history and across the globe, and the ways in which they have influenced modern tattoo styles and trends.

With the invention of the electric tattoo machine and the explosion of tattoo conventions, and fine-art exhibitions, tattoos have never been more visible – or more varied. Whether you are already immersed in tattoo culture or just curious about the artform and keen to learn more, this book is your guide to the history, meaning, and enduring power of ink.

DRAFT

Small Appetite, Big Nutrition

Nutrient-dense, GLP-1 Friendly Recipes to Sustain & Maintain Your Weight Loss

Lisa Marley

Nutrient-dense recipes to satisfy smaller appetites and help you stay strong and healthy while taking GLP-1s

THE PITCH

- GAP IN THE MARKET: Fast growing and underserved audience with proven desire to invest in their health
- EXPERT AUTHOR: Lisa Marley is a qualified nutritionist and chef who works with GLP-1 users every day
- AUTHOR CONNECTIONS: Lisa works as a Wellness Adviser for one of the UK's largest GLP-1 providers (mybmi)
- HUNGRY AUDIENCE: The prominence of self-published GLP-1 cookbooks in healthy eating charts on Amazon demonstrates a need for this book

THE BOOK

An estimated 4.3 million people in the UK are on GLP-1 receptor agonists for weight loss, a number that has doubled in the last year and is continuing to grow fast. Not one of them has been given a cookbook. This is that book.

Dramatically reducing your appetite without changing what you eat is a recipe for disaster. Protein crashes. Muscle wastes away. Energy disappears. Hair can thin. People are losing weight but they're losing the wrong things alongside it.

Nobody, not their GP, not their clinic, not the internet is teaching them how to nourish their bodies with the nutrition it needs to thrive.

Small Appetite, Big Nutrition is the first cookbook written specifically for the GLP-1 generation. Not a diet book. Not a medical manual. A real, beautiful, practical cookbook full of delicious, vibrant recipes that work as hard as the medication does. Built around three core nutrients: Protein to preserve muscle and sustain energy, Fibre to support gut health and extend satiety, and Healthy Fats to deliver genuine, lasting satisfaction.

It goes beyond recipes. Batch cooking and meal prep for busy weeks. Quick no-cook meals for the days when energy is low and appetite is lower. Maintenance eating guidance for the critical, and often terrifying transition off medication. It will also investigate the psychology and give readers the tools to rebuilding a healthy, lasting relationship with food.

THE AUTHOR

Lisa Marley is a professionally trained chef and Nutrition Coach with a passion for making healthy eating simple, satisfying, and achievable. As Wellness Adviser for one of the UK's largest GLP-1 providers (mybmi), she works with patients every day, helping them navigate the nutritional challenges of reduced appetite with practical, evidence-based advice and flavour-packed recipes.

Lisa has appeared on The World Cook (Amazon Prime), Channel 4 and Channel 5, and has worked with leading health and wellness brands, translating nutrition science into accessible recipes that fit into real life. Through her media work, recipe development, and nutrition expertise, she continues to inspire millions to eat well and enjoy cooking.

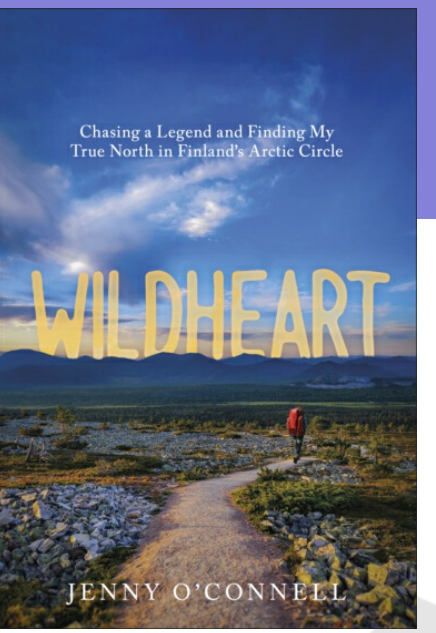
Wildheart

Chasing a Legend and Finding My True North in Finland's Arctic Circle

Jenny O'Connell



A gutsy and revelatory memoir of a young woman's solo 700-mile journey into Finland's arctic wilderness and her quest to uncover a hero of the past.

THE BOOK

In 2013, Jenny O'Connell met a legendary woman who would change the course of her life. Petronella van der Moer came to Finland as a penniless aspiring writer in the summer of 1949. After skipping out on her hotel bills in Helsinki and fleeing to Lapland's goldfields, the Dutch woman was deported at the center of a scandal, eventually becoming a folk hero in Finland's far north. When fate brought Jenny and Petronella together in the final months of Petronella's life, Jenny held her breath as the dying legend whispered four captivating words: "I walked to Lapland."

Enthralled by Petronella's adventure in Finland and the mysterious web of unverified stories she left behind, Jenny leaves her job as an outdoor educator in San Francisco and sets out with a big red backpack to retrace Petronella's route from Helsinki to the dramatic, rock-studded fjelds of Lapland's Lemmenjoki National Park. As she walks and hitchhikes from the city suburbs and wide-open lakes of southern Finland to the rugged and unfamiliar terrain above the Arctic Circle, she confronts her own mortality as she encounters violent storms, illness, and the shocking tenderness of strangers, lives with an eccentric group of gold prospectors, and begins to reclaim the wildness and trust in herself she lost as a young girl.

Set against a harsh and stunning backdrop of wild rivers, rolling mountains, and the midnight sun, Wildheart provides sharp inquiry into what it is to be a woman making her way in the male-dominated world of outdoor adventure, interrogates the inherited fears that keep us small, and examines the critical connection between wild places and our most authentic selves. A moving account of self-discovery and transformation, this book explores our lost connection to wildness and the rich life that awaits us when we take it back.

THE AUTHOR

Jenny O'Connell has spent over 16 years leading global backpacking, sea kayaking, and river expeditions, helping people connect to their courage through outdoor adventure. Jenny is a 2017 Stonecoast MFA graduate from the University of Southern Maine, was a Seguinland Institute visiting professor, and has taught creative writing workshops at Hugo House, Stonecoast, and Maine Media. Exploring themes of solo travel, vulnerability, and risk through a feminist lens, her writing focuses on the intersections of wilderness and humanity. Jenny also writes Wild Story, a Substack collection of essays dedicated to staying wild, tender, awake, and deeply connected in today's world.

THE BOOK

The closest you can get to a high-speed train without actually standing on the tracks!

Most commuters watch calmly from the safety of the station platform, but this book gives you an all-access, front-row pass to the jaw-dropping sight of world-class trains blasting down the line. From the very first experiments to record-breaking steam locomotives and blindingly fast bullet trains, every period of the railway era is covered. Go deep into the maintenance sheds where technicians fine-tune complex diesel and electric engines, take a seat in the driver's cab, meet the immense rail-construction vehicles that lay down miles of track, and explore the control centres shifting the switches.

Modern high-speed trains are among the most complex engineering wonders ever created. Traveling at speeds exceeding 200 mph, they cross mountain ranges, traverse underwater tunnels, and connect continents. This book is a bold celebration of the machines making global travel possible. Alongside the breathtaking photography, feature panels reveal the rich 200-year history of the rails, and explanatory boxes unpack the brilliant science behind modern locomotion.
